Serving in Silence? is the culmination of four years of oral history interviews, visits to the National Archives of Australia, and the perusal of old newspapers and ephemera held at the Australian Lesbian and Gay Archives (ALGA). The project's genesis came after a small article in the Sydney Star Observer in 2012 reported the twentieth anniversary since the 1992 repeal of the LGB service ban. We realised that while most Australians knew about the United States' 'don't ask, don't tell' policy, little had been written about Australia's own LGBT service history. We began the project on a small scale in 2014 with funding from Australian Catholic University. From 2016, the project has been supported by Australian Research Council Discovery Grant DP160103548.

Along the research journey we have recorded over 115 stories from current and former LGBT service members. First and foremost we want to thank each one. While it has not been possible to include ~~everyone-person~~ every person significantly informed our analysis and our understanding. We express our gratitude to the 14 men and women who agreed to have their life stories published here, and for their diligent reviews of their respective chapters: Brian McFarlane, Carole Popham, Christina Dennis, Julie Hendy, Wally Cowin, Susie Struth, Richard Gration, Yvonne Sillett, 'Mark', David Mitchell, Matt Cone, Bridget Clinch, Vince Chong and Ellen Zyla. We also wish to extend a special thanks to DEFGLIS, especially Vince Chong and D'Arcy Cartwright, who have been instrumental putting us in contact with so many currently serving members and supporting us in so many other ways. Thomas Hoffman was also a lifesaving link within the Department of Defence. This project has the approval of the Departments of Defence and Veterans' Affairs Human Research Ethics Committee, and we are also grateful to the Vice Chief of the Defence Force, Vice Admiral Ray Griggs, for providing command approval to conduct this research with currently serving Defence members.

No project is ever the work of the authors alone. Research assistant Julien Varrenti-Osmond has been especially helpful, trawling through a massive back-catalogue of LGBT media at ALGA, which helped us uncover additional stories and interviewees. The volunteer staff at ALGA have also been instrumental, sharing their wealth of knowledge. In particular we would like to thank Nick Henderson, Gary Jaynes and Kathy Sport. Research assistant Cheryl Ware has assisted in coding interviews and conducting research at the State Library of New South Wales. Anisa Puri has also been enormously supportive in Sydney. At NewSouth we thank Executive Publisher Phillipa McGuinness for her support and feedback on the manuscript, project editors Paul O'Beirne and Elspeth Menzies, and copyeditor Jody Lee. Thanks also to Matt Akersten for permitting us to use his image of the Rainbow Wreath on the cover.

Academic colleagues have provided vital mentorship and valuable feedback over the course of this project. From Australian Catholic University, thanks to Noah's colleagues Shurlee Swain, Nell Musgrove, Maggie Nolan, Melissa Bellanta, Hannah Forsyth, Fiona Davis, Catherine Bell, Mark Chou, Michael Ondaatje and Ellen Warne. Thanks also to Noah's colleagues at other institutions, including Pat Grimshaw, Ara Keys, Patty O'Brien, Craig Greene, Laura Rademaker, Cath Bishop and Christina Twomey. He also extends thanks to all of his friends and family for listening as he talked about the amazing people he met ~~on~~doing this research, some of whom have turned into good friends. Of course, the biggest thanks goes to loving partner Michael who has unconditionally supported every research endeavour, comforted Noah during every bout of stress, and been a fun companion at the Military Pride Balls.

Shirleene wishes to thank all who gave up their time to speak to her about their experiences. She is grateful for their generosity and the friendships that developed. She also thanks wonderful historians and excellent friends Lisa Featherstone, Lisa Ford, Rebecca Jennings, Andy Kaladelfos, Robert Reynolds and Yorick Smaal for support during the process. She also thanks her family and friends. Alex Greenwich, a firm supporter of equality in all fields, encouraged this work on the LGBTIQ contribution to the ADF. Leah Newman and Helen Ross-Browne have shared this journey in a very special way. Kay Harrison, Sophie Partridge and Sarah Taylor were there with much-needed practical support in critical moments. Shirleene's wife, Sarah Midgley, has lived with this project and provides unstinting love, always.

Graham would like to thank the gang at ALGA for making his work possible, and fun. He would like to remember Graham Carbery, who was both a sailor in the Australian Navy (unsuccessfully) and an activist, historian and archivist.
