

Highlights

- New novel device (GroinBar) correlates well with hand-held dynamometry for hip strength testing
- Normative values for male Australian rules football and football (Soccer) players identified
- No differences in strength found between those with and without past history of groin pain